In association with CTE's Mission Research Network

Zoom gathering

Wednesday 26th May 2021

11.00am-12.30pm

Mission, race and colonialism

We are delighted to welcome three scholars to share with us around the broad topic of Mission, race and colonialism. In the light of all our Zoom concentration levels each speaker has just 10 minutes to share on that topic and to interpret it in any way they see fit. It may be telling a story, exploring a historical figure hidden from view or reflecting on the theme through the lens of covid and all the turmoil it has caused. There will also be time for breakout groups and a Q & A with the speakers.

The Revd Shemil Mathew - Shemil was born and brought up in Kerala, in a Christian family in the tradition of St Thomas. Shemil has wide experience of working with Anglican communion churches in Asia and Africa and has worked as a teacher in Sri Lanka. Eleasah Phoenix Louis - Eleasah is a sessional lecturer and PhD Candidate at Christ Church Canterbury University, UK. Revd Canon Lusa Nsenga-Ngoy - Lusa is the BAME mission and ministry enabler for Leicester Diocese. He is an ordained Anglican minister with a passion for social justice and a desire to see global voices amplified in theological discourse.
