

Annual Publishable Article Prize for Practical Theology

The British and Irish Association of Practical Theology (BIAPT) brings together practitioners, researchers, teachers and students for mutual support and learning. The aims of this prize are to acknowledge and publish excellent research undertaken by BIAPT members in the form of a publishable article. The prize is aimed at those who have, to date, little or no publishing record, and will not be awarded to anyone with a substantial publishing record.

The prize is £200 and a free place at the 2022 BIAPT conference and the publication of your article in the journal Practical Theology. The winning article will have its title and abstract posted on the BIAPT website.

Criteria for Applicants

- You have a recent and relevant publishable article, no longer than 6,000 words, which meets the criteria for publications within the journal Practical Theology. For details, please see Aims and Scope and Instructions for Authors but DO NOT submit the article through Editorial Manager. Submit as directed below.
- You are a current member of BIAPT. You can join at our Join BIAPT page.
- You have no more than one previously published article in the field of Practical Theology.

The Prize Committee will be chaired by Professor John Swinton. The Committee reserves the right not to award a prize in any given year. The Committee's decisions are final.
